

MAINE JUVENILE JUSTICE ADVISORY GROUP

WHO WE ARE

The Maine Juvenile Justice Advisory Group (JJAG) is the State Advisory Group (SAG) established under the federal Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974 (JJDPA), which was most recently reauthorized in 2018 and has been codified in Maine law (Title 34-A M.R.S. §1209). The JJDPA sets out national standards for the custody and care of youth in the juvenile justice system and provides direction and support for state juvenile justice system reforms to improve youth outcomes and community safety. SAGs are comprised of volunteer members appointed by the Governor/Chief Executive in each U.S. jurisdiction and membership is determined by the federal statute and must include certain identified stakeholders who have training, experience, or special knowledge concerning the prevention and treatment of juvenile delinquency, the administration of juvenile justice, or the reduction of juvenile delinquency, including persons with lived experience in the justice system. The Act, administered through the U.S. Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP), also provides for staff support to assist the JJAG in carrying out its functions. Maine's JJAG currently has two staff housed at the Maine Department of Corrections (MDOC). The JJAG member list can be found at: https://www.jjagmaine.com/members/

WHAT WE DO

The JJAG provides policy direction and participates in the preparation and administration of the state's federal funds available through the JJDPA. The JJAG is also responsible for supporting compliance with the core protections of the law and providing information about the Act's requirements to state and local policymakers. The JJAG's main functions are described below:

Ensure compliance with the JJDPA's four core protections.

To receive federal funding, a state must maintain compliance with the four core protections of the law as follows:

- Deinstitutionalization of Status Offenders Ensure that youth who whose actions would not be considered offenses if they were adults are not held in secure confinement. The most common examples of status offenses are skipping school, running away, breaking curfew, and possession or use of alcohol.
- Jail Removal Ensure that youth are not held in adult jails or holding facilities, with very limited exceptions including before or after a court hearing (6 hours), in rural areas (24 hours plus weekends and holidays), or in unsafe travel conditions.
- Sight and Sound Separation Under the limited exceptions above, ensure that youth do not have contact with adults who are under arrest or incarcerated. Youth cannot be housed next to adult cells, share dining halls, recreations areas, or other common spaces with adults, or be placed in any circumstances that could expose them to threats or abuse from adult offenders.
- Racial and Ethnic Disparities (formerly Disproportionate Minority Contact) States are required to assess and address the racial and ethnic disparities of youth at all points in the justice system from arrest to detention to confinement.

Develop a comprehensive 3-year plan that provides a strategy for utilizing federal funds in Maine.

The JJAG is required to develop the State of Maine Three Year Comprehensive Plan for how it will use its allocation to improve juvenile justice in Maine.

- The state plan must reflect the allowable activities outlined in statute, which include investment in community-based alternatives to incarceration, training for system stakeholders, and a range of programming to meet the needs of system-involved youth or those at risk of system involvement.
- State allocations are calculated according to the number of people under age 18 in the state, with a guaranteed minimum allocation of $600,000 annually. Funding is withheld for non-compliance with the core protections and related statutory requirements.
- In Maine, funds are distributed in accordance with the state's three-year plan and related annual updates. Allocations over $5,000 must be issued following requests for proposals (RFAs) or upon approved sole source contract. Small grants of under $5,000 may be approved by the JJAG.
- The JJAG also provides financial and performance measures reports to OJJDP and the Governor annually.

Serve as a resource on issues that affect youth and families involved with Maine's juvenile justice system.

- Educate citizens, legislators and others on policy and practice in the juvenile justice system.
- Support research and programs that enhance efforts to prevent and reduce delinquency, divert youth from court when appropriate and ensure fair and effective treatment and rehabilitation of all youth involved in Maine's juvenile justice system.
